STRANDED ON LONG ISLAND

THE STEAMSHIP BERMUDA RUNS ASHORE. NO LIVES LOST AND THE VESSEL THOUGHT TO BE

No Lives lost and the vessel thought to be in lives lost and the freight and passenger trade between New-York and the Windward Islands, ran on the sand in a fog yesterday morning on the south shore of Long Island, seventeen miles west of Montank Point and half a mile east of the Amagansett Life Saving Station. She was bound for this port, having left Trinidad on May 26 and touched at her last port, St. Kitts, on June 4. She carried twenty-three passengers (seven of them steerage) eleven mails and a cargo was all sugar, hides and whale oil. Her usual cargo was all sugar, it is supposed that the captain, George Whitehurst, lost his reckoning because of the heavy fog which has prevailed for three days. The place where she went aground is not a dangerous one and it was expected by her agents last night that she would escape serious damage. All the reports from the steamer stated that she was lying easily and was suffering no damage from the surf. Efforts to float her off by throwing overboard a small portion of her cargo were unavailing, and two steamers of of the Merritt Coast Wrecking Company went to her assistance about noon. The passengers and mails were bronght ashore without injury, and the unails were placed on the train and brought from Sag Harbor to this city last evening by the purser, Charles P. Bickell.

The first intelligence of the grounding of the Bermuda was brought to the office of A. Emilius Cuterbridge & Co., about 9 a. am., by the Coast Wrecking Company. Outerbridge & Co. are the agents of her owner, the Quebec Steamsbip Company. Thomas McKenzie, the manager of the firm, immediately chartered wrecking steamers and started for the seene of the accident, which it was expected he would reach about midnight.

Purser Bickell said last night:

The passengers have been landed and are comfortably cared for at the hotel at Amagansett. I have made arrangements to have them taken to Sag Harbor, where they will take the Long Island Rallroad. The ship lies easily on a soft bottom, and unless bad weather sets IN LITTLE DANGER.

Following is a list of the passengers!
Saloon, John Peolf, B. R. Peolf, H. Lenckmeyer, Captan Johnshan Chase, Mrs. G. D. Simpson, Rev. Francis Gaugeeux, Thomas Arnott, York Wilkins. Second cablu, Miss S. A. Agarrd, Miss E. C. The Bermuda was built in September, 1874, in Sunderland. She is a schooner-rigged, iron serew steamer, having a gross tonnage of 1,160, and the following dimensions: Length, 232 feet; beam, 29 feet; depth, 22 feet. She was recently overhauled at Roach's vard, when her net tonnage was increased from 746 to 835 tons. She has been in a collision and was once ashore on the rocks astride of Bermuda harbor. In February, 1882, the Bhhama, of the same line, which had first sailed under the name of the Bermuda, foundered six days out from St. Johns, Porto Rico, and her captain, E. Field Astwood, of Bermuda, and nineteen others were lost. Thirteen men, including two passengers, were rescued by the Allan Line ship Glenmorag after they had been twelve hours in an open boat.

In the city rank, fine breeding and high education, who can at the command of his Government to attach himself to the Consulate in this city, was a passenger on the steamer City of Merida, which arrived here on Wednesday evening. Besides the Mandarin, who was dressed in his distinctive garb, there were two other Chinamen on the steamer. They were on their way to China. The three men, by the express terms of the law, were exempt from the operations of the law, were exempt from the operations of the law prohibiting the landing of Chinese laborers. Yesterday forenoon the facts in the case were called to the attention of Deputy-Collector Wynakop, who went to the steamer. He found that Lin Chung Tau had a Spanish passport, and also credentials from the Chinese Legation at Washington. These were fished out of his trunk by the Mandarin after he had been asked to produce them. The Deputy Collector them declared himself satisfied and permitted the indignant Celestial to land. Proof of the intention of the other Chunamen to go straightway out of the country again was furnished and they also were sent on their way rejoicing. Deputy-Collector Wynkopo said in the afternoon to a Tribuxe reporter:

I attended to the case of the Chinese official within twenty minutes of the time when it was prought to my postice by the usual filing of the steemer's passenger list. CRUSHED IN THE ICE AND ABANDONED.

Intermation was received night before last by McKay & Dix, shippers, at No. 47 South-st., of the loss of the Alumina, a whaler for which they were agents. The news came in a hurriedly written letter of James Lawrence, captain of the lost vessel, carried from off Montauk Point by the pilotboat Phantom. Captain Lawrence was on the bark Flourine, bound from Greenland for Philadelphia, where she arrived yesterday afternoon. He immediately reported the particulars of the loss of his vessel to McKay & Dix by telegraph. He stated that the Flourine sailed from Ivigitut on May 16 with the officers and crew of the Alumina, except the second mate and two seaman who are on the bark Silica. The Alumina was lost in ballast on May 4 at the mouth of the harbor of Ivigitat. She was crushed in the ice and made water at the rate of ten inches an hour with the pumps and all hands at work, so that she had to be abandoned. The Silica was loading at Ivigitut and intended to sail on May 22. While homeward bound the Flourine spoke the Ivigint, another whaler belonging to the owners of the Alumina. She was bound in and had on board all the hands of the Daoish brig Elna of which some wreekage and two boats were found washed up at the entrance of the harbor.

McKay & Dix are apprehensive touching the fate of another of their vessels—the Kryolith. Captain Lawrence reported that the northera winter had been annoually severe and the straits were filled with ice. The Alumina was a first-class bark of 278 tons burthen and was built four years ago at Bath, Me. CRUSHED IN THE ICE AND ABANDONED.

LOOKING FOR A MISSING DAUGHTER.

Millie Severin, the fifteen year old daughter of Philip Severin, of No. 451 East One-hundred-and-seventeenth-st., who mysteriously disappeared on May 14, has not been found. She had been employed at the store of Bioomingdale Brothers in Third-ave., but was discharged. On Wednesday Lillie Maxwell was arrested on the charge of having abducted her. Miss Maxwell stated that she was only slightly acquainted with girl, but that they had drank beer and eaten clams together. The case was dismissed, Said Mr. Severin, yesterday, to a Tribune reporter:

Millie was a good girl and seemed to love her home. Detectives are on the case and to-day Superintendent Walling gave Captain Mount a iprivate letter of instructions in regard to the matter.

REWARDING BRAVE AND ABLE FIREMEN.

The Fire Commissioners and 5,000 other people, including many city officials, went to Washington Square yesterday to witness a parade by a brigade of uniformed firemen, an exhibition by the Life Saving Corps, and the presentation of the Bennett and Stephenson medals, by Professor Theodore W. Dwight. The Bennett medal for bravery in 1883 was given to Fireman William B. Kirchner, of Engine No. 17, who saved the lives of James McCabe and his wife on March 29, 1883. The Stephenson medal for discipline and efficiency in command of a company was presented to Foreman Arnot Spence, of Engine No. 27. A long truck bearing twenty members of the Life Saving Corps dashed through the square and stopped in front of a five-story house at South Fifth-ave, and Fourthst. Scaling ladders were taken from the truck quickly, and in a few seconds a string of ladders reached from the ground to the roof.

THE PARK DEPARTMENT MANAGEMENT. CHARGEES AGAINST IT TO BE INVESTIGATED IN

CHARGERS AGAINST IT TO BE INVESTIGATED IN COURT—ACCUSATION AND DENIAL.

Justice Barrett, in the Supreme Court, Chambers, vesterday granted the application made by Elliott Sandford in behalf of John Noble Stearn, Joshua C. Sanders, Horace Winans, Edward A. Morrison and George H. Beyer, for an order to compel the Park Commissioners to appear before the Court for an examination into the management of the Park Department. The order is raturnable on June 19 and was granted under Section 60 of the Consolidation Act, permitting five responsible taxpayers to make such an application. The affidavits of the five taxpayers accompanying the application set forth that the Contoller's books show that the department has expended the city's money recklessly, unwargantedly and in violation of the charter. Excluding new work, the department expended, in 1878, $337.501; in 1881, $599.613; in 1882, $663.881; in 1883, $787.100, while the expenses of 1878, the deponents say, were ample for any other of these years. About $250,000 has been expended since January 1, 1884, in surveying, etc., in the annexed district, while $125.000 was sufficient to do the whole work, which is not yet completed. Gravel was bought in 1881 for $3 05 a cubic yard, and in 1883 for $2.25, while from $1.40 to $1.75 was enough. Painting the Third Avenue bridge has cost $7,000, whereas $1,800 was sufficient.

The deponents further declare that work has been undertaken for a special purpose in amounts exceeding $1,000, by other means than by contract and without an order on the Common Council. In 1881, $15.000 was paid for gravel, and in 1883, $17,505 without contracts. While the same system was followed regarding $5.750 for artificial pavements in 1881, and $17,500 m 1882, and $7,000 was expended for painting in 1882. The deponents declare that all these sums were excessive.

A Tribune reporter called upon the Park Commissioners with regard to the matter. Commissioners Wales and Olliffe were out of town, General Viele, president of the Board, said:

I have no conception whatever of what the statements refer to. The administration of the Park Department today challenges the closest scrutiny in every particular. There is not a "sineourist" in the Department, either as clerk or laborer, and the men earn their pay as well as any in any other department of the City Government. More than six months ago, when derogatory statements were made, all the Commissioners united in an official communication to the Mayor requesting a thorough investigation of its affairs, and now court investigation.

vestigation of its affairs, and now court investigation.

Mr. Crimmins said:

We court the fullest investigation. The charge that we have 500 sinceure laborers on the pay-roll is ridiculous, as there are only 608 laborers all together on the roll, and those for all the parks from the Battery to Highbridge. As for Mr. Morrison, he has been asked by letter and personally, by the Commissioners at various times, to make the fullest investigation, and he has always been "too busy" to accept the invitation. I assert that the Park Department has been economically conducted. The parks are in excellent condition; every seat has been newly painted, not one is broken; the walks are kept absolutely clean, and the lakes are clear and clean. Not a day passes that we do not receive the congratulations of citizens on the fine condition of the parks.

Since 1878 the Park Commissioners have doubled the expenses of their department. As taxpayers we object. We think that they are wasting our money. The Commissioners in December 1883, asked the Mayor to appoint a committee of three to examine the books. No opposition to it has been encountered, according to the statement of the senior partner, who said yesterday that the firm hoped to resume business in a short time. The plan of settlement is to market the quick assets, which the firm guarantees shall furnish a dividend of not less than 25 per cent of the habilities. The other assets, which can be soid now only at a sacrifice, are to be placed in the hands of a trustee satisfactory to the creditors, who shall have the entire management of them. The firm offers, in addition, its notes for twenty-five per cent, payable at any time within five years. "We expect to pay in full," Mr. Hatch said, "and we propose this plan that we may resume business as soon as possible. The notes are to be paid from the profits of our new business, which we shall begin with fresh capital. GLEN ISLAND OPENED FOR THE SEASON.

The island in the Sound which John H. Starin owns and has named Gien Island, was given to the public again as a summer resort yesterday. The threatening skies of the morning had some influence, no doubt, in keeping people away from the charming place; but in the afternoon, when the sun laughed between the clouds at the umbrellas in the city, the excursion boats filled up and Glen Island swarmed with humanity. The wniting-room at the steamboat pler has been enlarged to three times its former size. The asphalt walks have been extended, and about Club Island a sea-wall protects the grass plots from the wild billows of the Sound. Then there are to be electric lights at night and 4,000 persons will be able to assemble in the music pavilion, to hear Grafulla's band. If the thousands of persons who are taken to Glen Island in the six steamboats which will run there this summer do not enjoy themselves it will be their own fault only.

The sound of the pistol drew a policeman to the spot but he found no sign of any one else in the vicinity. The man was about thirty-five years old, dressed as a workman, and there was nothing to lead to his identification. It was thought that it was a case of snicide.

PLEEING FROM THE BRIDAL ALTAR.

Miss Ida Monfort, of Glen Cove, L. I., the daughter of Superintendent Monfort, of the Glen Cove Starch Works, has only been in society for two years. About a year ago she met Elwood Lincoln, son of the publisher of the local paper, at a church pienic. Elwood reported the picnic for his paper, and soon began to attend the same church that Miss Ida did. They became fast friends, and the friendship ripened into love, notwithstanding the opposition of Mr. Lincoln's father. They became engaged to be married, and the wedding was set for Wednesday evening. Invitations were sent to over 100 leading society people in New-York and Brooklyn, and the ceremony was to be performed by the Rev. Mr. Williamson, of the Glen Cove Presbyterian Church, assisted by a clergyman from New-York. Elwood had been to see Miss Ida on Tuesday, and the wedding arrangements were completed. The arrival of the Long Island express on Wednesday carried numerous wedding presents to the prospective brid.; and the afternoon trains from this city took scores of guests. The six bridesmaids FLEEING FROM THE BRIDAL ALTAR. spective bride, and the alternoon trains from city took scores of guests. When the large clock on the Starch Works struck the hour of 8, the spacious drawing room, dining room, and library of the Monfort mansion were crowded. The six bridesmaids here, in Miss Ida's room, the Rev. Mr. Williamson was in the library and Mr. Lincoln's best man mingled with the guests. Elwood failed to come. At half-past eight Mr. Monfort drove to his home and was told that: "Master Elwood left home on Tuesday morning, taking several trunks with him, and did not say when he would return." Mr. Monfort hurried back to his home and taking the clergyman into a recess told him his story, at the same time seeking his advice. Mr. Williamson quietly informed the guests, and then broke the news to Miss Monfort, who said: "Well, something must have happened to Elwood, or he would not disappoint me." Mr. Lincoln. the father of Elwood, said: "Yesterday my son was in Washington on business."

The excitement caused by Lincoln's disrppearance once was intensified yesterday when it leaked out that Miss Carrie Hall, another belle of the village, had suddenly left home on Monday, the day set for her marriage to George Crabs, a painter. Miss Hall charles, but Miss Hall complained of not feeling well and it was postponed until Monday afternoon. At 1 o'clock the Rev, Mr. Middleton, pastor of the church, the groom and groomsman, and a few friends were at the church and waited until two o'clock when they sent a messenger for Miss Hall. The messenger announced that Miss Hall had gone to New-York on Monday, saying that she would return soon. When Crabs learned of Lincoln's departure he threatened to blow his brains out. The good elergyman advised hin not to anything of the kind, but take the first train for New-York and try and find Miss Hall. In speaking of the peculiar occurrences to a reporter the Rev. Mr. Middleton said: "Tis very strange, indeed, these runaways on the eve of marriage."

Receiver Wilkinson will probably be chosen president.

A MOURNFUL MEETING. From The Philadelphia Press.

A Forlorn Hope meeting a venerable Third Party Movement at the gate of a gravoyard, remarked with some asperlipt "Had you been as Wise as your kind you would have remained in the grave where I placed you Twelve Years Ago. When you are ready for burial again you must look Elsewhere for quarters. We do not accommodate Transient Guests at this Establish ment."

"But," protested the venerable Third Party Movement,
"but surely I heard a trumpet calling me hence."
"Fool," quoth the Forlorn Hope, "Fool to mistake the Braying of Asses for the blast of Resurrection. Go back to your grave. When Gabriel honts For you he will do it with a Sieve, not with a Brass Band."

A LIFE SAVED BY A CIGAR.

From The San Frâncisco Post.

Bob Ingersoil tells—in private though—a good story at his own expense, but one which we see no reason should not be enjoyed by the world at large. It seems that while Ingersoil was in Cleveland, soon after his successful legal fight for the Star-Routers, a sort of auti-tobacco crusade had been started in that city, and a well-known Boaton scientist was delivering nightly lectures against the use of the soothing weed. This speaker invited others to argue the question with him, but, although the smokers were largely in the majority, the Boston man invariably proved too elever for the debaters breught against him.

Availing themselves of Ingersoil's presence, some of his friends begged the great orator to take up the oudgels in behalf of the tobacco-users; which he condescended to do, more as a joke than for any serious reason.

That evening the half was jammed, and, when the prohibitionist requested an answer to his arguments, Bob solemnly arose and said he would reply to the statement de said:

solemnly arose and said he would reply to the statement of his eloquent friend by the relation of a simple incident. He said:

"I was once attending to a mining case in one of the wildest and most inwiess regions of Utah. A murder had recently been committed by a notorious thief, and a committee of local vigilantes were watching for him at every crossroad. Just after nightfall I was riding back to the town from the mine, mounted on a white horse. The town from the mine, mounted on a white horse. The vigilantes had received information that the desperado in question would pass the very road the same evening also riding on a white horse. The posse had ambushed themselves in some chapparal, and as I came down the bridle-path they got ready to fire all together—for they waste no time on trials in that section. Entirely unconscious that half a dozen shot-guns were sighting my shirt-front. I stopped my horse, struck a match, and proceeded to light my elgar. Thinking that the light would give them a still better mark to shoot at, the concealed party held their fire for a second. In that second the blaze of the match reflected on my features, revealing they were not those of the man they awaited, and, stepping out on the road, they congratulated me on my narrow escape. And so, ladles and gentlemen, if I hadn't had the good fortune to be a smoker I wouldn't be here now."

"And, you call that fortune!" grimly asked the antitobacco lectater, after the applicable had subsided.

"Yasan't it!" inquired Bob, with a plaintive smile.

"I don't see it," thundered his opponent. "If it hadn't been for that miserable cigar, there would have been one less lawyer in the world."

And, amid the roar that followed, Ingersoll sat down, completely knocked out in one round.

THE POINT OF HONOR.

From The Virginia City Chronicle.

It is extremely refreshing to notice the fine ense of honor possessed by some of the rising generation a Virginia City. Last evening two youths, each ages bout fourteen, met on Cat, when the following dialogue ok place:

"I say, Bill, you got my knife."
"No, I sin't."

"Isay, Bill, you got my knite."
"No, I ain't."
"Pon yer word!"
"Pon me word."
"Pon me word."
"Pon me word."
"Pon me word."
"Hope you may die if you have!"
"Hope I may die if I have."
"You ain's got my knite!"
"I ain't got your knite."
The querist seemed to be still incredulous, but was on the point of giving it up in despair when a bright idea occurred to him, and he returned to the attack with, "Pon yer hours!"
"O," said the other, "now you touch me noner, take your dauged old knite," and he handed the article over.
"Well done, Bill," said his chum, "I allus knowel you was a henorable chap."

THE PERAMBULATORY FLY.

The first fly of the season is here, and he calls for some remarks. There are nearly always some remarks made when the early fly puts in an appearance. The first expression is generally one of wonder as to where he comes from. Like Minerva, he springs full fledged into being, without any intermediate stages of youth or infaney, and is ready for business the first warm day. Though he is unlike the fabled goddess in that he is not supposed to have spring from a skull, he loves to spring on to oze, particularly a baid skull. A skull from which the capillary adorument has fled is at once the fly's recreation park and pasture lot. It is there he takes his morning walks or plays tag with other flies. Although scientists and naturalists have striven to show that the fly is a wise dispensation of Providence, the general opinion among the ferrerant masses is that it were better to bear the ills we had and knew not of than fly to others that we are sure about.
